ITEMS AT THE COURTS.

A bluejacket from H.M.S. Monmouth was fined 25 at the Magistracy for disorderly 1981 conduct and for assaulting P.C. O' Sullivan in the execution of his duty.

Mr E. R. Hallifax to-day fined two · natives at the Magistracy $25 each for being in possession of opium, and also sentenced the same men to four menths' imprisonment each for being in possession of dies, stamps | Islands for forty miles. and labels imitating those of the Opium Farmer.

A Chinaman went into an opium retailer's shop to purchase a quantity of the drug, but the keeper would not accept a ten-cent piece, which he advanced, saying it was a bad one. This so annoyed the would-be purchaser that he went out and got a brick and came back and threw it at the other man, hitting him on the head. At the Magistracy to-day the aggressor was fined

OXFORD'S GROV ING DEMOCRA_CY.

The spirit of aste has commonly been associated with the reputation of Oxford; but if we take the recent confessions of a work man's son this haughty goddess has adeserted her shrine. There are gome who say that this spirit is invading American colleges. Has she become a homeless wanderer and is knocking at any h capitable door? At all events this Oxford man, "H. A." whose confessions appear in the Manchester Guardian, asserts that " class prejudice hardly existed, at all" in his own college., With few exceptions he was on the most friendly footing with all

Then, too, there is "at Oxford a strong and fercible minority who to some extent do really justify the vehemon't attacks ma de upon them from the foot of the Martyr's Memorial, on Sunday evenings by fanatical bocialists." But this man sees also "extremists of the rich, just as the vehement revolutionary is the extremist of the poor."

Cliques he admits, "but they are not formed on class lines."

This writer, whose words are quoted in-The American Education Review (Now York ), entered Oxford at the age of twenty nine, after having taught in an elementary school. The standard of life, so much higher than he had proviously known, caused him not only dismay, but repulsion. He describes his first "hall dinner":

"Solid silver spoons and forks! What wicked waste! A clean napkin every night! A four or five-course dinner," and only once in my life had Texperienced an evening dinner. Truly I was a commoner! Opposite sat a lord's son; by my side the MANILA: Messrs Macondray & son of a famous writer; nonr me were the descendants of historical families. was poor, shy, nervous, sore in spirit, along as I had never been before. It was a new world, and I was half afraid. As I returned alone through" the shadowy quadwaglepast the ancient building up to my room-I felt heartsick and miserable. Nor was the warm selitude of my room at first any antidote. It was full of ghosts. Famous men'had lived in it-at least one great poet. one famous historian. Other rooms on the staircase had housed great statesmen, literary men, poets, thinkers." Why, then, was I here? Was it all a dream? Or was it really true that the old hard life was behind me, that I, too, was at last given the chance for which I had craved, for which so many better, more > below there in the schools, the factories, the foundries? .. . . . I didn't understand servants! It was so strange to have a man at one's beck and call. Nor did it seem right that I who had always waited on myself, cleaned my boots, done odd jobs about the house, should have all these things done for me. But when at 7.30 on my first morning at college the good man came 484 into my bedroom, drew up the blind, poured cold water into the shallow bath. and said, 'Half-past seven, sir,' thenindeed, I was shocked! He evidently expected me to have a cold bath; to sprinkle myself with icy water on that keen October morning—a most unheard-of proceeding! A further sense of strangeness a filicted me in the possession of two rooms, a bledder and a sitter, the latter a large double-windowed "room very comfortably furnished, and with the walls all panelled not with oak but painted wood. There were no pictures—those I could provide it I wanted-and from one of the pile of advertisements received during the next few days I learned that pictures could be hired by the term. But having pictures was out of the question. By some oversight the college authorities had omitted to notify me that I must provide my own table linen, cutlery, etc. . . . . . . . . . "Is it necessary to say that such expenditure caused me the greatest of all my discomforts? During the first few days I was maddened by the way in which 'fresh men' were throwing money about. Pic. tures, cushions, fancy articles, pipes, clothing, baths, books, wines, tobacco, cigarettes to say nothing of the linen and cutlery. were all being bought in huge quantities at fancy prices. To me, whose purse had always been but poorly furnished, whose career nine years ago at a day trainingcollege had been a time of poverty so great that frequently two meals a day had to suffice,; that for a week at a time I was absolutely penniless; that for Saturday night after Saturday night I was glad to carn four shillings for playing the piano in a certain public house; ... to me this lavish expenditure seemed at first not mere-

Nor was this the only occasion on which men like him have said the same sort of thing to or about me. In fact, I have been amused, astounded, even provoked to find that in my own college were men who gave me a sort of hale, and approached me with the diffidence I conform I had felt toward them, merely because I was supposed to be, 'a real live working man who had som life, and had stroggled up to Oxford just as the story-book young man does." desire to know me, said: But I don't suppose he'll care to talk to me. I'm so ignorant of things. "Thus before long I was actually being sought as the man who knew a good deal, at first hand of social problems and the life of the poor. At debating-societies I was soon embarrasingly in request, for a characteristic of Oxford to-day is the extraordinary interest taken in all sorts of social questions—unemployment, poverty, housing, education, the right to work. slum life, conditions of labour, sweated industries. Such subjects have occupied a very large proportion of the debates both at the Union and at the various college socioties. It was this keen interest in social reforms which first showed me my greatest misconception with regard to the upper classes.' Like most loyal members of the proletariate. I had preached of the callousness, the indifference, of the rich to the sufferings of the poor. I had henestly believed that the rich" were more responsible for the evils of poverty, and unemployment, rackrenting and sweated labour. But now that I was thrown among these ravening beasts like a slave among walves for their delectation. I found that quite a large number of these wolves were watch-dogs."

AMOY NOTES

From our own Correspondent.) DEATH OF DR OTTE. AMOY, April 15.

It is beyond our feeble mortal sense and limited human vision, to understand or fathern in anyway the workings of the Divine Will. It is only when we are brought face to face with death, especially the death of those neurest and dearest to VALUABLE HOUSEBOLD us, that we realise the inexorableness of the will of God, and "we are overwhelmed almost, with feelings of pitiful anger; and our minds become numbed when we remember our helplessness in the face of the stern uncompromising facts of life and, death. Doctor John. Otte passed away at 9 o'clock last night. Thursday, after 3 short days of illness. The cause of death was pineumonic plague, and the doctors in attendance were almost powerless from the first. Dr Otte took to his bed on Monday night, and the disease was of such deadly virility that on Thursday night it had claimed its victim. On Wednesday of last week, Dr Otto attended d'ease of pneumonic plague over in Amoy city, and without doubt caught infection on that occasion. Everyone knew Dr Otte, both Chinese and foreigners alike, and to know him was to respect and admire him. He was the most unselfish of men, and this unself-hness was his most wonderful and lovable possession. He never spared himself, and was ever ready and willing to go out of his way to help those in need, whether in spirit or in body.

Dr Otte arrived in Amoy in 1888, and has laboured here for over 22 years. He planned, built and permanently established the Hope and Wilhelmina Hospitals on Kulangsu, the funds for the cost being almost totally collected by himself, and his devoted work and endless devotion in connection with these Hospitals. will ever make his name remembered and beloved. He lived very close to God, and Him who he so faithfully served on earth has now seen fit to call him to Himself. He served his fellow men, not counting the cost to himself, and we honour and revere him with hearts very full of praise and gratitude for so great and noble a life. Our prayers go up for those left behind, his wife and children at home in the States. May the God of all comfort take pity on them, and bless and heal their bruised and broken hearts.

only been a few isolated cases of plague.

and so far the scourge is purely endemic. The continued absence of rain makes the way easier for an outbreak, but I trust we may escupe this year. . The U.S.A." Asiatic Squadron arrived in port at 2.30 p.m. on Thursday afternoon, the vessels being the Charleston, the Cleveland, the Chattanooga and the Callao. Two Chinese cruisers are also here to receive the visitors, the Hai-Chen and the Hai-Che.

Ceylon papers contain fuller accounts of the speech which Mr Roosevelt delivered before the Cairo University and which has been Appointed our AGENTS in Hongaroused so much resentment among the kong. Young Egypt partisans. He emphasised that true education was not a matter o curriculum, but of wisdom and of sincerity of character which was more important than mental subtlety. This was true of nations as well as of individuals. Selfgovernment was a matter not of decades. but of generations. It was no more possible for anyone to give self-government by a paper constitution than to give an individual self-help. It was essential in the educational process to cultivate a spirit condemning every form of evil and hatred. especially hatred based on religion or race. The murder of Boutros Pasha, he declared, was the greatest calamity to Egypt. The type of man being turned out in the assassin is a type alien to good citizenship. He stands on a pinnacle of infamy. These apologising for or condoning him occupy the same bad eminence-Whether the crime be political, or industrial or whatever the creed of the perpetrator, in the long run it will be equally damaging to the cause which the author professes to promote.

THE CHANGSHA RIOTS. HUNAN, of which Province Changsha do not incline altogether to this theory the capital, has long borne a bad China is still too much of an inchoate reputation among foreigners. "A mountainous region, yet comprising within its area four river basins, draining into the gradually diminishing Tungting lake, it was for a lengthy period of its history quite outside the main routes of travel. The naturally enforced isolation of the took, absolutely no interest in the war province tended, in "the absence of between China and Japan" in 1894 practicable roads, to segregate the inhabitants' into small communities, ignorant of the outside world and even in Hunan is scarcely likely to set fire to imperfectly acquainted with each other. The number of local dialects is astonishing, due to the same cause. But disturbance, pure and simple, though of though there may be strife of tongues course Peking will be held responsible among the 21,000,000 people dumped down on its $3,000 square miles of territory. Hunan is as one man in entertaining rabid dislike for the foreigner. The Hunanese, too, are a turbulent, hot-headed race; difficult to govern, implacable, like all mountaineers, in their hatreds, and very liable to rise in sudden spurts of anger against their rulers, The post of Chinese or Manchu official in Hunan can scarcely be said to be attractive to man of, peace-loving ways, for from the Governor down to the most junior appointed to represent that organization in expectant Taotai the fear of the people's wrath, is an ever present apparition, materially tempering the enjoyment of

WHAT IS AN OPIUM DIVANT

Both magistrates at the Police Courts have dealt with cases in which natives have been charged with keeping opium divans. The case which came before Mr J. R. Wood was one from Hunghom, in respect of which it came out in evidence that there was no fee charged for the use of the The Sydney correspondent of The premises and no opium sold there. The smokers, however, had been in the habit of leaving the dross behind after smoking their pipes, and the police considered this as equivalent to the payment of a fee. Chief Excise Officer Hoggarth contended 23 of 1909 did not apply as the section under which the warrants were issued made no provision for the seizure of dress opium or its forfeiture. If the leaving of dross behind meant the equivalent of the payment of a fee then most of the Chinese restaurants would have to be regarded as divans within the meaning of the law, for it was the custom in these places for patrons to bring their own opium and leave the dross behind. "His Worship upheld Mr Hoggarth's point and dismissed the case. "A similar case came before Mr E. R.

Hallifax, the premises in question being situated at Yaumati. This case was also dismissed on the same grounds.

The missionary movement was being emphasised in the United Kingdom never before, and in two months' time an unprecedented world's mission conference was to be held at Edinburgh. The attendants at this conference represented almost every Protestant denomination and every Christian nation on earth. They were going to ry to put the subject of missions on a thoroughly business-like basis, and the speaker hoped that very great things would esult. Bishop Banister said he looked back with great deal of satisfaction to the establishment of the Church Missionary Society, which had done a great deal of good in a quiet sort of way. Speaking with regard to the missionary movement, he said the main question now was a question of church development. It could not be disputed that throughout the whole of China, in every province and little community, there were men and women whose lives were guided and directed by the Christian spirit. In China at the present time we were souing a great people change its ideals and leave its pursuits. It was readjusting its position in regard to the past, present and future. Referring to the question of Colonial garrisons and their upkeep, the United Services Gazette says that a statement in the Army estimates gives the total strength of the colonial garrisons as being 45,215, of of which South Africa absorbs 11,493, Malta 7,467, Egypt 6,027, and China (including Hengkong) 6,228. "The cost of these garrisons," the journal continues, is not readily ascertainable, but a Paper issued in 1906 gave in each case the total expanditure on their upkeep and the proportionate contributions Colonial and Imperial Exchequers. They showed that the garrison in Canada then cost £301,871, to which the Dominion contributed £22,600; in South Africa £3,069,429, to which the various South African Colonies contributed £4,000; in China £479.032, to which Hongkong contributed £119,659. Ceylon, on the other hand, paid £156,708, as against the Imperial Government's £50,295; and the Straits Settlements £208.713. against the Imperial £36,934. These figures have, of course, been much altered since-we have ceased, for instance, to maintain garrisons at Halifax and Esquimault-but we question whother the figuresnow standing would exhibit any more logical and reasonable distribution of cost. We still for example, maintain a garrison of 1L493 in South Africa, which contributes nothing towards its upkeep. It is apparent that any garrison in a self-governing colony which costs the Imperial Exchequer money is against political reason and sound theory.

"In regard to Colonial garrisons generally it is not easy to perceive the principle on which some of the colonies which are not self-governing contribute largely in proportion to the cost of their garrisons and others not at ali. Why, for example, should the Straits Settlements contribute more than we do, and Hongkong, an enormously rich colony, no more than £100,000 for the unkeep of a garrison of more than four thousand? And why, above all others, should South Africa be favoured with a garrison of between eleven and twelvethousand Imperial troops and yet be allowed to go scot free in the matter of contribution for maintenance? To answer these questions would no doubt raise many questions of our policy towards the colonies. but that is just the reason why it would be interesting to have them answered."

CORRESPONDENCE.

AN ABSURD PETITION.

(To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL.")

Sir,-I observe that, notwithstanding the altogether reasonable speech of His Excellency the Governor at the list meeting of the Legislative Council outlining the circumstances which are actuating the Government in deciding to part with a plot of land on the Praya adjoining Royal Square, a petition has been launched with the idea of raising an agitation against this most business-like proposal. Surely we are not so hard up for excitement or diversion in Hongkong that we need seek to arouse the apathetic public to champion a hopeless cause, or, as you, Sir, aptly described it, a " forlorn hope "?

One wonders what will be the outcome of this funny little farce and how many people will be induced to append their signa tures to the momentous petition. I venture to think that if the public really knew to what plot of land the proposed sale applies there would not be half a dozen residents who would take the trouble to attach their names, without they be selfish members of the Hongkong Club absolutely indifferent what loss the Colony may suffer so long as an open spaces is preserved in front of the Club buildings. The plot in question does not come into the rectangle of Royal Square at all, and, whether it is built on or not, will not in the least degree affect the matter of laying out a garden similar to that opposite the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, ground for which has already been fenced off. Newspapers as a general rule feel the pulse of the public pretty well, and it is significant in this case that of the four journals in the Colony all but one have, after becoming acquainted with the facts of the case, ment plans." It is nothing short of sheer tain G. C. Cayley, of the Minotaur, the given most hearty support to the Governabsurdity to try to stir up the public in an opposite direction, and I would suggest that no one signs the petition before he or she has actually visited the spot and has had definitely pointed out the plot over commander in 1901, and captain just four which there is such an unnecessary fuss. ## S.S. SUVERIC SWEPT BY HURRICANE.

The se Suggric from Scattle, under the command of Captain F. S. Cowley, which arrived in port this morning, encountered very bad weather while crossing the North Pacific. "A terrific hurricane swept the vessel from end to end off Albenbian's Island, and four lifeboats, one gig, four derricks, lavatory, hospital, carpanter's shop; office and about 80 feet of rail wore lost. This occurred on March 27 and was the work of one huge sea.

RUBBER NOTES

As an indication of the commercial awakening of Malasca due to the Rubber boom, it is interesting to hear that a Singapore engineering firm has decided to open a branch there, and that a representative of the firm has already gone up to make

Rowland, of the Singapore Para quarters and the fire brigade station. It is Rubber Company's Estates, Perhentian said that a German concern has secured a Tinggi, who is taking a few months' rest work. Mr Rowland is one of the best the cubic metre. But how about the known and most skilful planters is Malays, harbour with its three and a half mile and the estates at Perhentian Tinggi are models of up-to date methods of planting. He established a steam saw mill, a few years ago, and it proved so useful that there was not much difficulty in persuading the Government to put a railway station right in the heart of the Perhentian estates. The guarantee as to carnings at that station has been very considerably exceeded almost since the day it was opened.

> The first ordinary general meeting of the Indragiri Rubber and Guttapercha Co. Ltd. was held on April 9th at the offices of Menare Evatt and Co; The Arcade, Singapore. Mr Winkelmann in the chair. The Company was floated in October last with a nominal capital of $250,000 in shares $10 each. Of this capital $200,000 has was taken over by the company amount. ed to about 640 acres of which about 400 acres were planted with guttapercha (palaquium oblongifolium) and 240 acres with Para rubber (Heves Brasiliensia). The number of trees as taken over by the Company is approximately correct. The figures given in Mr Rowland's report were ;--15 trees 13 years old, 1,000 trees 8 years old, 14,000 trees valued owing to many vacancies.

The vacancies were found to be belowten per cent., all of which have since been fully supplied. The guttapercha fields also showed very few vacancies which have been fully supplied. Shareholders may safely. take the number of trees as follows:-5,000 treus 12 years old, 20,000 trees years, 20,000 trees 4 years, 20,000 trees 3 years, 15,000 trees 2 years, and 20,000 mostly newly supplied. Another 460 acres have been opened up | 31. and planted with Para rubber, 18 plus . about 61,000 trees. Thus the total area under cultivation at present, 700 acres= about 106,000 Para rubber trees,400 acres about 100,000 guttapercha trees. Apart from a few white ants there is absolutely no disease on the estate; not a single trea, being attacked by fungus or fomes. Tapping operations have been commenced, and are progressing favourably. The old trees especially are flowing remarkably well. 2,000 trees are now being tapped and the number of tappable trees is incresing daily. The manager expects to get not less than 80,000 lbs. of dry rubber during the current year, and after carefully going into the matter-with the tapping assistant, estimated the output of dry rubber for the next

3 years as follows :--1011 ... 15,000 trees = 24,000 lbs. 1912 ... 25,000 ... = 80,000 lbs. 1913 ... 38,000 .. = 150,000 lbs.

The Chairman stated that the directors had been approached as to making a sale of the company to a London Company. "We are invited," he said, "to sell the whole of the company's property to a London company home to kowtow at his ancestral shrines the to be formed with a nominal capital of reserved against an option to this company to take up same at par within a reasonable period of years and the other half would be reserved for the promoters with a like privilege." On a show of hands's unanimous disapproval of any idea of a sale was manifest.

THE DYNAMITE EXPLOSION

Enormous Damage.

Kobe papers contain graphic accounts of the explosion which occurred at Mirume, in the portion of Kobs harbour set apart for the storage of explosives, at 6.45 a.m. on Thursday, April 7th. Says the Kobe Herald: "For a few seconds people thought the end of all things had come. No such | + SHANGHAL, KOBE shock or report had ever been experienced here before and the effect for the moment was staggering. At first almost everybody thought an appalling earthquake had occurred but the concussion, so far as Kobe at least was concerned, was so slight that the more experienced attributed the terrific report to a gunpowder explosion or a possible accident at the Gas Works. "It soon became known, however, that the real cause was to be found in the Harbour, in the outlying section received for vessels where explosives are stored. There were moored one bulk (the property of Mesers C. Nickel and Co., Ltd.,) and three lighters (owned by Japanese.) In the former, which was specially fitted up for the storage of dynamite and other powerful explosives under Government supervision, there were about 5,200 cases of dynamite, gelignite, and strange to say, detonators, about 190 tons in all; and in the three lighters about 50 tons more. The explosions occurred in the hulk; and the three lighters were sunk by the upherval of the sea. The one sendo in charge of the lighter was blown to pieces, but his was the only life lost. The damage done on shore was very extensive, hardly a house escaping windows being amashed, doors broken, hatches of ships were lifted. There seems to have been two explosions, the first caused by the ignition of the detonators, the second by the dynamite and gelignite. The damage done at the Oriental Hotel is Tasmanian-Ports. thus described :- The force appears to have struck the great building of the Oriental Hotel, cannoned off for an instant to demolish Cornes and Company's windows aross the road (Harima Machi) and then crashed nto the mas ive brick structure, rejoicing in the lust of power at having found a foeman worthy of its strength. Forcing entry through the three easterly windows morniz of the Reading Room, all of which were night. torn from their brick setting, the resistless blast smashed in the window looking into the Dining Room and surged through the Grill Room and Foyer, seriously damaging the ceiling of the former and thrusting a large window bodily into the Dining Room, and smashing the heautiful coloured-glass, sky-light of the latter. Meanwhile it fractured one half of the solid swin ing doors at the entrance and played havoc with the windows of the Board Room and several other chambers.

What appears to be the most serious damage of shore was wrought at the Kasugano works of the Kobe Gas Company where a large three-storey dempster telescopic gas holder collapsed, letting loose 70,000 cubic feet of gas. A larger one, somewhat to the west, was not damaged. It was fortunate the explosion occurred early in the morning as had there been workmen about there must have been

According to investigations made by the Mikago Police, twenty-two houses had their ceilings and roof beams smashed in, while 2,244 houses had their doors and shoji broken. Telephone wires were broken at four places. The number of wounded (severely and slightly) was sixty-five. In the jurisdiction of the Kobe Police the number of houses damaged was about 15,000, the amount of damage being estimated of Y160,000; eight-three persons

In the jurisdiction of the Kobe Water Police, the total damages is estimated at about Y100,000 including the cost of the explosives lost and boats destroyed. One person was killed and another wounded. If the damages in districts under the jurisdiction of the Aioibashi and Hiogo Police were added to the above, the total amount would be enormous. The damage to the Kobe Gas Company was at one time estimated at some Y200,000 but as the result of further investigation it is said to be considerably less.
